To whom it may concern:

This is to certify that I have known PF Lazor since 1976. I would like to offer a testimonial on his behalf.

I am a chairperson and counselor for the Michigan Lupus Foundation (part of the nationwide non-profit organization that provides assistance, information and counseling to persons suffering from Systemic Lupus Erythematosus, a rare, incurable and degenerative disease) I feel my experience as counselor will allow me to give an honest and objective assessment of Mr. Lazor's character.

Mr. Lazor was instrumental in developing our cabinetry business. His dedication, industrious nature and immense talent were integral factors in making our business successful.

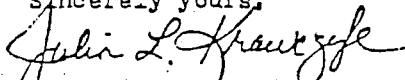

During the period he resided in Michigan I had many occasions to observe him without his knowledge. His attitude was healthy and very human. He always showed a true christian charity to everyone and he proved himself worthy of our complete trust. Since he was not caught up in drugs or alcohol he was able to work tirelessly and with immense enthusiasm. Not once in all the time I spent with him (often more than eight hours a day ) did he ever display malevolence or try in any way to aggrandize himself. He never became provoked even though the working conditions were less than ideal and he was under much pressure to complete the work. I realize it was these qualities combined with his gentle and forgiving nature that made him my friend and endeared him to me.

His presence was sorely missed when he made California his home, but we have maintained an open correspondence over the years. I still have the letters he sent and have a willingness to part with them if they could be helpful in his vindication. All the letters are revelatory of his kind and loving nature.

It would be ridiculous for me to infer that PF Lazor has reached perfectibility. As his dear friend I'm fully aware that he's too trusting and has a certain gullibility that allows others to take advantage of him. I do not think his weaknesses detract in any way from his outstanding intrinsic strengths. His complete aversion to violence, his honesty, his moral standards, his dedication to justice his gentle, unbiased nature and his delightful sense of humor are a wonderful combination that makes him one of the finest humans I've ever known in my life. In the name of fairness he is inculpable and must be vindicated.

I affirm that my testimony is completely truthful.

Sincerely yours,
