

REFRAIN

He put the flowers in the spring, the silver clouds in summer skies;
 for us to love each wondrous thing, as beauty to our eyes.
 He made the winter's flakes of snow, to follow breezes of the fall;
 to ponder mysteries none will know, just so our hearts could enjoy it all.

1. He cloaked each sparrow with its quills, He named each lock on every head.
 He knows how joy in the heart fulfills, as living things spring from the dead.
 He weaved the colors into trees, the dance of leaves before the rain;
 creating buzzing of the bees, and golden windblown fields of grain.

REPEAT REFRAIN, AFTER EACH VERSE

2. He sprinkles morning grass with dew, and lightning cracking restless air;
 He made the love I have for you — in my heart He sowed it there.
 He made the sun's great energy, lifegiving light that guides our way.
 Commands the calm and roaring sea, and separates night from the day.
3. He engineered the minds of men, gave birth to even the life force.
 He authored cycles to come again, and keeps each planet on its course.
 He trademarked rainbows from the rain, the sweetened air cleansed by the shower;
 Pumps liquid life through every vein, makes rivers teem with living power.
4. He casts the stars into the void, designed uniqueness in every creature;
 each grain of beach sand he deployed, pronounced in nature every feature.
 He named each sprout that breaks the ground, paints growth with color — every hue,
 He gave us memory in scent and sound, and beauty recreating anew.

TAG

And He designed it all for His pleasure, past imagination's capability;
 a masterpiece of unending treasure, to span into eternity...
 And He made this all, to share, with you and me.

REPEAT REFRAIN, FADING IT OUT
