

1. Listen to the wind as she sighs delicately.
Listen to the brilliant stars, as they all pulse in a dance.
Listen to the grass & flowers grow, in changes you can see.
And hear the heavenly choirs shout their music, out of the silence.

INSTRUMENTAL TURNAROUND [BETWEEN EACH VERSE]

2. Listen now, just listen; you can hear it in the void.
Listen to the beauty we forgot was always there, in the empty space where there was noise the silence has destroyed.
And in it rings the promise of hope that all the righteous can share.
3. Listen to the clouds in glorious moments till they fade.
Listen to the changing forms of every living/dying thing.
Listen to the forests' harmonies, in their own grand parade.
And if you listen with your heart, sure, you can hear the mountains sing.
4. Listen, every tone of color has a sound it emanates.
Listen to the difference of each one its Maker made.
Like a scent each has a sound at its own rate it vibrates.
* Each in its place in time & nature — every strand, & vein, & blade.
5. Listen to life breathing, everywhere that nature reigns.
Listen to the seasons changing, telling what's in store.
If you listen you can learn every answer life explains.
All subtle sounds hid in the silence, play their part,
in Yahweh's great music score!

Listen, just listen...

Listen, just listen...
