

SONG FOR A BEAUTIFUL LADY

Lady I was introduced to;
something I thought I was used to
-wasn't ready for what I beheld.
Woman's perfect beauty drew me;
something in her soul that knew me,
living song and wellspring of deep feeling -- a meld...

And, oh, when she walks into the room whole fields of flowers in me bloom!
The sun pours love in golden rays
down in impassioned springtime days.
Looked into her eyes and gazed,
the whole world stopped! --awed! --amazed!

* (Then she let me touch her...
no words left... Oh!... only feelings).

†

Back to earth, my heart re-planted;
love struck soul still craved and ranted
-voluptuous lady, take my breath away, away!
Should I dare let my heart feel it?
Guard that part, don't let her steal it,
She did nothing to bring this feeling -- she got it anyway...

And, oh, if I could have her for a friend
Could the love flow turn or end?
Where would all that power go-- does the creator even know?
It's this life's greatest mystery,
captivating, setting free

* (Then again she allowed an embrace... oh, no words... Oh!... only feeling).

†

Loveliness in all its splendor;
womanliness, warm and tender
-embodied so consummately in her countenance.
In different worlds we live apart,
still, the thrill -- my pounding heart,
my hunger soars, she even makes it dance! [What's the chance?]

And, oh, if I kiss her in my dreams, fountains burst from dammed-up streams!
Harp strings strummed across my heart
where my music finds its start.
And when it finishes I'll know,
it's my time to turn and go...

seeds forever I'll never sow, Oh! Oh!

* (Oh, but let me touch her, once again...
Oh!... No words... Only feeling... Only silence).

†

††

End

* Breathlessly spoken.

† Long pause of total silence follows each refrain.

†† Enter guitar (harp) solo, very subtly, like at the start,

- Whole instrumental section follow second refrain (optional).