

1. It's written so softly in the sweet smile of your eyes,
in answers to my wonders, in your tender acts of kindness.
It's hid in your responses when your precious little one cries;
It's in these replies, not words, where I find this...

In these little things that you do -- and not say;
In these subtle hints and tints, I see YOU -- bright as day;
It's your heart imprinted in your own, sweet, special way,
in every nuance of love you convey--
Oh! No! Don't go! Stay! Stay! Stay!

[INSTRUMENTAL TURNAROUND, AND AT ASTERISKS BELOW]

Are the chords of my heart that I write -so wrong?
Is she bound to another still, not free -for me?
To be in her heart! Her love! Her arms!
Oh, how, oh how, I long,
and to whisper,
softly to her,
SUZY'S SONG.

[FULL INSTRUMENTAL]

2. My heart, my soul, come feel it, steal it, seal it deep in yours, my part is done, I'm won, by nothing special that you do.
But flood me with your fragrant music, poured out by the scores,
it just happens, specially, because you're you...

Your feminine essence no words could explain;
Just there, as you are, like the sunshine in the rain;
Displacing life's sour sorrows with a sweet-scent refrain,
bringing hope, little children, in the cycle again--
Oh! Life! --You were not in vain! *

Are the chords of my heart that I write -so wrong?
Is she bound to another still, not free -for me?
For, in her heart! Her love! Her arms!
--isn't that where I belong?
and to whisper,
softly to her,
SUZY'S SONG. *

In her heart! Her dreams! Her arms!
Oh yes, that's right where I belong!
and to whisper,
softly to her,
SUZY'S SONG.

And to whisper, softly to her, SUZY'S SONG.

And to whisper for a lifetime, to her, SUZY'S SONG.
