

WE'RE ALREADY LIVING IN ETERNITY

1. I was sunning in the rays
 Humming to the day's perfections.
 I'd been running in the waves and funning 'neath the bay's full moon.
 I was laughing on the beach inner splashing there to reach reflections; Ment'ly rapping out a speech they'd be clapping me to preach by noon.

 Then all of a sudden a wave hit me that we're already living our days in eternity!
 There's no second chance to make history-
 -It's right now!

2. Birds were flying overhead spying crumbs of bread someone littered.
 Their babies dying to be fed and then be put to bed with a tune.
 Chirping enigmatic tweets
 while gathering up their sweets, they twittered.
 Feathery heart that softly beats
 as this paradise retreats too soon.
 Yes paradise surrounds us now
 But we manage to not see it, somehow in a closed dimension, despite our intention
 -for heaven, here! Right now!

[INSTRUMENTAL]

3. I was smiling in a storm piling up a swarm of memories.
 Though vying to keep warm otherwise in perfect form—for June.
 With affinity with the rain
 to win me through the pain of those glories.
 Some, it sloshes down the drain and washes out the stain of ruin.
 As every moment, yes, is grown away
 Don't let one, no, be thrown away
 Live every second in joy
 -It's all you're ever going to have!!

TAG: [Slow sing lines 1, 2, 5, 7 of verse 1; then sound of typewriter striking 3 dots = ... and sound of "ding" of typewriter bell signaling end of line] = end

Written: November 30, 2011