

WHEN SUMMER COMES AGAIN

4-29-14
(#42)

- 1. One more ring around the tree
four more seasons gone too fast Someone new and different you see peering in the looking glass.
Time to reflect on your undue favor,
dreams that came true you now have, to savor
and bet you won't forget nor regret
*when summer comes again.
- 2. Secrets never kept as they crept
from their holding places, found Our souls' carousels, each one tells a different story spinning 'round.
Some with fulfillment, some with reprieve
most paid in promises we'd never achieve and none fully done as it spun around *when summer'd come again.

[INSTRUMENTAL]

- 3. Broken betrayals hammer more rusty nails
into the coffin.
Those spoken tales, it seems it never fails —
at least not very often,
to seduce the naïve who forget to forgive
right up till you leave — what a dying way to live
But the showers of a new day will wash it all away
*when summer comes again.

BRIDGE: From one day, to the next day, to the next year
From one smile, to the next smile, to the next tear.
From spring rains to winter window panes
warm inside where I hide — from the cold and behold the mysteries of it all growing old.

- 4. [REPEAT VERSE 1]

[INSTRUMENTAL FADEOUT]

[END]

Written: April 29, 2014